Chapter Nine

Daily Tracking Pages

90 days of data. Your body's biology, in black and white.

Two minutes a day

- Morning: log fasting glucose, waking energy, and sleep quality.
- Evening: rate your cravings, check off your habits, and write one note.
- Every 7 days: review the numbers for patterns, not for a single reading.

How to use these pages

Each daily entry takes two minutes: one in the morning, one in the evening.

Don’t push the morning entry to later. Log your fasting glucose and waking energy as soon as you wake, before food, coffee, or checking your phone. When you take a reading is part of what it means; a reading an hour later is not the same reading.

The evening entry takes about 60 seconds. Check off what you completed and write one note. That’s all.

Over the ninety days, these pages link your daily choices to what you notice in your body. When you bring this log to your medical appointment, you’ll have something concrete to discuss: observations and trends, not a passing impression.

The rule of this log

Honesty matters more than completeness. If you didn’t log a reading, leave the field blank. If you didn’t exercise, write “rest day.” Don’t guess at data and don’t fill gaps to please yourself.

Important: do not change prescribed medications or start supplements based on these tracking pages alone. Discuss the plan and your results with a qualified professional.

Field guide

What does each field mean?

Use the same rating scale for all ninety days so comparisons stay useful.

Fasting glucose

Your blood glucose reading in the morning, before food or any drink other than water. If you don't have a reading, leave the field blank. A continuous glucose monitor (CGM) gives continuous readings, while a finger-prick device gives a reading at a single moment.

Waking energy (1–10)

Rate how you feel in the first ten minutes after waking, before caffeine and activity. 1 = exhausted, 10 = awake, rested, and ready.

Sleep quality (1–10)

Rate how restorative it was, not just how long you slept. 1 = broken, unrefreshing sleep. 10 = deep, continuous sleep.

Cravings (1–10)

Rate how intensely you craved sugar and carbohydrates at the end of the day, or at the strongest moment. 1 = almost nothing. 10 = an overwhelming urge that is hard to resist.

Daily habits checklist

Check off the habits you actually completed. There is no partial credit. Honest logging is the requirement, not perfection.

Movement

Write the type and duration: a post-meal walk, a Zone 2 session, resistance training (A or B), or everyday activity like standing and climbing stairs. If you didn't exercise, write "rest day."

One note

Record the most notable thing you noticed today: a response to a food, a change in energy, digestion, mood, or any symptom worth tracking. One sentence is enough.

If you use different glucose units, write the unit clearly when you record your weekly averages.

Chapter Nine | The Daily Log

The Ninety-Day Map

Each phase builds on the last. Use the table to see where you start, then return to the pages for each day to record the details.

Tracking phases

Days 1–7	Set up your baseline, learn daily logging, and build the first six habits.
Days 8–14	Add the Phase 2 elements as the protocol explains, and notice your body's response.
Days 15–30	Move to the full checklist, then complete your first review on Day 30.
Days 31–60	Consolidate habits and monitor patterns, then review at the midpoint on Day 60.
Days 61–90	Keep logging and comparing data, then complete the final review on Day 90.

The rule of this log

Don't look for a perfect day; look for honest, repeated logging. If you miss a reading, leave the field blank instead of guessing. At the Day 30, 60, and 90 checkpoints, compare the data with what you noticed in daily life.

Before Day 1

Day 0 | Baseline

Record your starting point before you apply the protocol, so the comparisons on Days 30, 60, and 90 mean something.

Baseline date: ____ / ____ / _____

Daily measures and baseline readings

Measure	Day 0 value	Unit / notes
Fasting glucose	_____	Unit: _____
Waking energy (1–10)	_____
Sleep quality (1–10)	_____
Cravings (1–10)	_____
Weight	_____	Unit: _____
Waist measurement	_____	Unit: _____
Chapter 1 self-assessment score	_____

What drove me to start this plan?

What is the most important change I want to notice in 90 days?

Day 90 | Reflection

What Did I Learn?

Write what you want to carry into the next phase.

The habit I’m proudest of building

The thing I’m most relieved to have cut back

What still needs more work

My plan for the next 90 days

One thing I would tell someone starting this protocol today

Chapter Ten

Weekly Reviews

Ten minutes, once a week. This is where you start noticing patterns.

Why weekly reviews matter more than the daily logs

The daily logs capture the data. The weekly reviews help you find the meaning in it.

A single morning reading tells you very little on its own. But seven readings, compared against your energy ratings, sleep quality, what you ate, and habit completion, can reveal a pattern worth noticing. Patterns help you make considered adjustments instead of reacting to one reading.

The protocol is not a fixed set of rules. It is a framework for learning how your body responds over time: week by week, month by month, then 90 days.

How to use the review

- Pick a fixed day each week and set aside 10 minutes for the review.
- Open your daily logs and copy over the numbers you recorded.
- Calculate the average for each measure: add up the readings you recorded and divide by the number of days that had a reading.
- If you missed a day of logging, don’t guess its value. Average the days you did record, and write down how many there were, so comparisons stay fair.
- Answer the questions briefly, then choose one adjustment for the following week.

This is not daily journaling. Keep your answers specific, and remember that personal notes don’t replace a qualified professional’s interpretation of your lab results.

Weekly Review | Week 1

Week 1 Review

Days 1–7 | complete on Day 7 or 8

Review date: ____ / ____ / _____
Days logged this week: ____ / 7

Averages and baseline snapshot

Average fasting glucose: _____
Fasting glucose, Day 1: _____ Day 7: _____ Change: _____
Average waking energy (1–10): _____
Average sleep quality (1–10): _____
Average cravings (1–10): _____
Days with all habits completed: _____ / 7

Four focused questions

Which measure surprised you most this week, higher or lower than expected?

Which single habit was hardest to keep up?

What did you notice about your body's response this week: energy, sleep, digestion, mood, or cravings?

What one adjustment will I make for Week 2?

Weekly anchor

Why did I start this protocol in the first place? Write one sentence, then rewrite it every week.

Weekly Review | Week 2

Week 2 Review

Days 8–14 | complete on Day 14 or 15

Review date: ____ / ____ / _____
Days logged this week: ____ / 7

This week's averages

Average fasting glucose: _____ | Week 1: _____
Average waking energy (1–10): _____ | Week 1: _____
Average sleep quality (1–10): _____ | Week 1: _____
Average cravings (1–10): _____ | Week 1: _____
Days with all habits completed: _____ / 7 | Week 1: _____ / 7
Zone 2 sessions this week: _____

Four focused questions

Did you notice a difference after adding L-glutamine, apple cider vinegar, or fermented food? What, specifically?

What drove the biggest positive or negative change in your fasting glucose this week, and what do you think caused it?

Which measures moved up since Week 1? Which moved down?

What one adjustment will I make for Week 3?

Weekly Review | Week 3

Week 3 Review

Days 15–21 | complete on Day 21 or 22

Average sleep quality (1–10): _____ | Week 2: _____
Average cravings (1–10): _____ | Week 2: _____
Days with all habits completed: _____ / 7
Resistance training sessions completed: _____ / 2 planned

Four focused questions

Now that your supplement stack is complete, what has changed most noticeably, positively or neutrally?

How did you feel during your resistance sessions? What adaptation did you notice, such as muscle soreness, energy, or sleep quality afterward?

Cravings this week: _____ versus _____ in Week 1. Why do you think it changed?

Final Questions

Write about the experience you lived, not about the numbers alone.

Looking at the table, describe in your own words the overall feel of these 90 days. Not the data; the experience.

What did this protocol reveal about your body that you didn't know before?

What did it reveal about your habits, patterns, or beliefs about health and food?

Which measure moved fastest for you, and which moved slowest? What does that tell you about your personal metabolic profile?

What is still unresolved that you want to address over the next 90 days?

Do you feel equipped to continue with this protocol independently, adjusting it based on your own data and raising your needs at medical appointments?

☐ Yes, completely ☐ Mostly; I need support with: _____

☐ Not yet; what I need more help with: _____

Weekly anchor

Why did you start this? Write it one last time, in the same words you used in Week 1.

And now, what do those words mean to you after 90 days?

Close of the protocol

Coach’s Tip

If you’ve made it here, congratulations.

From tracking to understanding

You’ve spent 90 days building new habits, collecting data, and noticing how your body responds. Results differ from person to person, but what you recorded gives you a clear foundation for understanding which patterns deserve tracking.

Day 90 is not the end. It is the start of a new phase: more awareness of your body, and the ability to keep up the habits that suit you.

And this is the beginning of a life with joy and strength that carries you for years to come.

Welcome.

After Day 90

What Comes After Day 90?

The structured learning phase ends. The habits you built don't.

Over these ninety days, you built habits, collected data, and drew a baseline you can compare everything against from here. The next phase is maintenance and refinement.

Keep the habits you were able to build gradually. For supplements, review whether they still suit you and whether you still need them in light of your tests and your health context, with a qualified professional. Don't start or stop them based on the log alone.

After Day 90, you may not need detailed daily logging. Choose a rhythm of tracking you can sustain. Options to discuss with a professional: fasting glucose daily, energy and cravings weekly, and waist measurement monthly.

If you notice indicators trending in an unwanted direction, go back to your logs and look for changes in sleep, stress, food, movement, and health circumstances. You can return to the first steps of the protocol and reassess gut-health support, as suits your health condition and treatment plan.

My follow-up plan

Indicators I will keep tracking

When will I review them, and with whom?

The three habits I will protect first

What sign would prompt me to request an extra review?

Bring your Day 90 test comparison to your next medical appointment. Ask what should be monitored, and whether the results warrant reviewing the plan or treatment. The numbers help you start a better conversation; interpreting them stays tied to your full health context.
